

BIG ISLAND BUILDERS NAMES CHARLES METZ PROJECT DEVELOPMENT/CONSTRUCTION SUPERINTENDENT

May 29, 2016

Big Island Builders has named Charles Metz Construction Superintendent. He will also assist with Project Development for their custom homebuilding business. Mr. Metz brings a wealth of building experience to the Big Island Builders team. A graduate of Kent State University, he began his career as a general contractor, homebuilder, and real estate agent in Ohio's Akron-Canton. He later moved to Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he served as the executive director of the city's preservation program, general contractor, homebuilder, and realtor. After moving to Southwest Florida twenty-five years ago, Mr. Metz owned and operated construction related businesses and has been employed as construction manager for a number of luxury homebuilders. He is a second-generation remodeler/builder and a welcome addition to the team.

Big Island Builders is a luxury custom homebuilder building superior custom homes and remodeling projects in Naples and Marco Island, Florida. Each and every employee at Big Island Builders is trained to understand the importance of experienced individuals working as a team when building a new home or completing a new remodel project. With three generations of building experience behind them, Big Island Builders offers a unique blend of luxury and hands-on communication with their customers.

They have a long-established reputation for making the construction process a smooth and gratifying experience for their homebuyers. Designing and building multi-million dollar luxury custom homes is a passion the entire team shares.
